Linc's Leadership Position in Healthcare Sector

Washington, D.C. — February 4, 2008 — Linc Facility Services®, LLC (LFS) and its family of companies today announced it has acquired Morse Medical, Inc., the largest independent clinical technology maintenance and management service organization in the Pacific Northwest. The acquisition is part of an aggressive growth strategy by LFS to strengthen its healthcare service portfolio, and accelerate the expansion of its geographic footprint. LFS is a business unit of The Linc Group®, LLC.

Headquartered in Bellevue, Washington, Morse Medical has 10 service centers across the Puget Sound. Its comprehensive services span everything from basic field service for physician offices to complete turnkey solutions for hospital and health care systems. The company's founder and president, Wayne Morse, brings more than 35 years experience to the company and is one of only 15 people nationwide named as Fellows in the American College of Clinical Engineering (ACCE).

“Morse Medical’s talented executives and team of employees have built a company with a long-standing reputation for innovation and quality service that fits perfectly into our operation,” said Phil Rogers, president of Linc Facility Services. “Their complementary capabilities will add yet another layer of expertise and leadership to our existing Technology in Medicine healthcare services provider. And, the transaction will broaden our reach on the West Coast, as well as expand the range of medical equipment services we offer to medical facilities.”

Under terms of the transaction, Morse Medical, Inc. will merge into Technology in Medicine, LLC but will continue to do business as Morse Medical. The company will also be branded as “A Linc Facility Services Company” and become an integral part of the LFS commercial division. Founder and President Wayne Morse will join the LFS executive team as well as continue to lead Morse Medical.

"Morse Medical brings exceptional commitment to detail and customer satisfaction that complements Linc’s world-class business infrastructure and quality management,” said Wayne Morse, founder and president of Morse Medical. “Together, we can take our service offerings to the next level to the benefit of our mutual customers. We are excited to partner with the industry leader and become part of the Linc family.”
